

Inspiring Photography

Tuesday, 9th February 2021 at 10.15 - 12.45 on Zoom

Our event looks at composition and techniques with the emphasis on wildlife photography and, as we cannot travel at present, a virtual safari to enjoy from your home.

Bob Brind-Surch

I am a professional zoologist and teacher as well as an experienced photographer and naturalist passionate about my work and sharing my observations of wildlife with others.

I have been a keen naturalist from a very young age and a photographer from my late teens. I am foremost a naturalist who photographs what he observes rather than a photographer specialising in wildlife. This is very important to me and goes back to why I started taking photos in the late 60s.

My early photography consisted of taking colour slides to illustrate talks I gave on wildlife.

I learnt my photographic craft seeking to capture animals in difficult situations and specifically recording animal behaviour. This was all the more difficult with older manual film cameras but proved a good grounding for practising and refining the skills that still serve me well in the digital age.
